WOOD STREET.

Pittsburgh, May 13, 1815.

Public Bathing House.

THE Proprietors of THE PITTSBURGH STEAM MILL BATHING HOUSE, hereby inform the Public, that the capacity of the reservoirs for that establishment is double, and so arranged that the cold and warm water perfectly seperated. The public will in future meet with the disappointments frequent on the former arrangement.

The cost of this establishment, has been considerable, and the Proprietors are sorry to say the proceeds arising from it are not sufficient to warrant the opening of it another season under the present limited patronage. It is however hoped that the new arrangement alluded to, together with a more extended knowledge of the great benefit arising from the use of Baths, in such a place as this, will in a short time, procure more liberal encouragement.

The price of BATHING is 25 Cents. The House will be open from 5 in the morning till 9 at night.

DOCTOR N. SMITH,

RESPECTFULLY informs the inhabitants of Pittsburgh and its vicinity, that he has been regularly licensed to practice PHYSICK AND SURGERY, and has for several years been engaged in the practice of its various branches, and therefore offers them his services, particularly in the capacity of a Dentist, hoping that his thorough knowledge of this branch of his profession, united with assiduity in business, and exertions to please, will entitle him to the patronage of the public. He cleans, repairs and extracts defective teeth, inserts new ones in such a manner and of such materials, the knowledge of which is peculiar to himself. He deems encomiums upon his performances superfluous, as he has set a number of artificial teeth since his residence in Pittsburgh; those that have scruples respecting the operation are requested to call and satisfy themselves.

The operation of inserting and cleaning is attended with little or no pain.

He also prepares the highly celebrated Carbonic Dentrifice, which will keep the teeth white and prevent the collection of Tartor.

Applications made at Dr. MORREL PARKER'S east side of Wood street, between Diamond Alley and Fifth streets.

FOR THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

SECLUSION.

Scene,—Locust Ridge.
Time,—Midnight.

Thy steeps, at last, majestick stream!* I climb,
Whither, so oft, my infant fancy strayed,
Pleased with the hope that in the lapse of time,
The tired Recluse might here find rest & shade.

Here let me muse. The stillness of the night,
Yon constant flow, that meets the southern breeze,
The moon's pale lustre,—all with force invite,
My harrassed heart to meditative ease.

Come, cool REFLECTION, lull those thoughts to rest,
To which the spirit of this world is prone;
Come like a queen, and in this care-tost breast,
Spread a bland influence round thy hallowed throne.

In days, now past, when PASSIONS' pow'r prevail'd,
No placid charm could sylvan scenery yield;
For then my heart was by the WORLD impaled,
And FEELING was against DEVOTION steel'd.

Now, by a miracle, this heart can feel,
And glow with joys RELIGION only gives;
My soul, in deep prostration now can kneel,
And whilst it kneels in adoration, lives.

For this sweet boon nocturnal hymns shall rise
From me, an atom groveling in the dust,
In pious praise to HIM, the only wise,
"Beneath whose wing my soul has learnt to trust."

....And can it be that e'er my flimsy mind
The flow of loyal homage durst withhold;
To love celestial be so deaf, so blind,
So dull, so dead, so obdurately cold?—

I shudder whilst in retrospect I gaze
On the mad pranks and follies of my youth,
When Error's clouds obscured the wondrous blaze
Which streams forever from the sun of TRUTH.

How thick those shades which hovered round my soul,
When philosophick pride my judgment led;
When sensual lusts my heav'nly portion stole,
And with coarse husks my heart's affections fed!

Ah! could not then some kind fraternal hand
Stay my bold flight and draw me back to good;
No voice, avaringly, persuade to stand,
And view the precipice on which I stood?

None! for no hand, tho' many a hand was near,
Was able to oppose my desperate speed!
No voice, tho' voices thundered in mine ear,
The ruin at my feet could make me heed.

I would not hear. For, like the adder, deaf,
My spirit then, against the charmer's voice,
When charms so wisely, shut in unbelief,
Chose death, not life, and madly held its choice.

Despotic self his iron sceptre swayed,
As undisputed king and sovereign lord,
And every vassal-faculty obeyed,
With courtier readiness and prompt accord.

Now whilst the fire of deep conviction burns,
And wakes the thirst for everlasting good,
I gladly fly from common life's concerns
To feast on hope, in awful solitude.

Oft to those shades, contemplatively led,
Shall midnight stillness now my vagrant feet,
And whilst the dews from heav'n light on my head,
May my enamour'd heart and wisdom meet.

For, in true stillness, I, at length, have found
Wisdom delights, and dwells forever there,
Since there no active thought, nor busy sound
Can interrupt the silent breath of pray'r!

THE RECLUSE.

From Carr's Northern Tour.

ASSASSINATION OF EMPEROR PAUL OF RUSSIA.

"IT was the custom of the Emperor, to sleep in an outer apartment next to the Empress's upon a sofa, in his regimentals and boots—whilst the Grand Duke and Dutchess, and the rest of the imperial family were lodged at various distances, in apartments below the story which he occupied. On the 10th day of March, 1801, the day preceding the fatal night, (whether Paul's apprehensions, or anonymous information suggested the idea, is not known) conceiving the storm was ready to burst upon him, he sent to count P———, the governor of the city, one of the noblemen who had resolved on his destruction. "I am informed, count P———," said the emperor, "that there is a conspiracy on foot against me—do you think it necessary to take any precaution?" The count, without betraying the least emotion, replied, "Sire do not suffer such apprehensions to haunt your mind; if there were any combinations forming against your majesty's person, I am sure I should be acquainted with it." "Then I am satisfied," said the Emperor, and the governor withdrew. Before Paul retired to rest, he unexpectedly expressed the most tender solicitude for the Empress and his children, kissed them with all the warmth of farewell fondness, and remained with them longer than usual; after he had visited all the centinels at their different posts, he retired to his chamber, where he had not long remained, before, under some colorable pretext that satisfied the men, the guard was changed by the officers who had the command for the night, and were engaged in the confederacy. An hussar, whom the Emperor had particularly honored by his notice and attention, always at night slept at his bed room door, in the anti-room. It was impossible to remove this faithful soldier by any fair means. At this momentous period, silence reigned throughout the palace, except where it was disturbed by the pacing of the centinels, or at a distance by the murmurs of the Nava, and only a few lights were to be seen distinctly and irregularly gleaming through the windows of this dark colossal abode. In the dead of the night, Z——, and his friends, amounting to 8 or 9 persons, passed the drawbridge, easily ascended the staircase which led to Paul's chamber, and met with no resistance till they reached the anti-room, when the faithful hussar, awakened by the noise, challenged them and presented his fusee, much as they must have all admired the brave fidelity of the guard, neither time nor circumstances would admit of an act of generosity, which might have endangered the whole plan. Z—— drew his sabre and cut the poor fellow down. Paul, awakened by the noise, sprang from his sofa; at this moment the whole party rushed into the room; the unhappy sovereign, anticipating their design, at first endeavored to intrench himself in the chairs and tables; then recovering, he assumed a high tone, told them they were his prisoners, and called upon them to surrender. Finding that they fixed their eyes steadily and fiercely upon him, and continued advancing towards him, he implored them to spare his life; he declared his consent instantly to relinquish the sceptre and to accept of any terms they would dictate. In his raving, he offered to make them princes, and to give them estates, and titles, and orders without end. They now began to press upon him, when he made a convulsive effort to reach the window; in the attempt he failed, and indeed so high was it from the ground, that had he succeeded, the expedient would only have put a more instantaneous period to his misery. In the effort he very severely cut his hand, with the glass; and as they pulled him back he grasped a chair, with which he felled one of his assailants, and a desperate resistance took place. So great was the noise that notwithstanding the massy walls, and thick double folding doors, which divided the departments, the Empress was disturbed and began to cry for help, when a voice whispered in her ear and imperatively told her to remain quiet, otherwise if she uttered another word, she would be put to instant death. Whilst the Emperor was thus making a last struggle, the prince Y—— struck him on one of his temples with his fist, and laid him upon the floor: Paul, recovering from the blow, again implored his life; at this moment the heart of P—— Z—— relented, and upon being observed to tremble & hesitate, a young Hanoverian resolutely exclaimed, "we have passed the Rubicon; if we spare his life, before the setting of to-morrow's sun we shall be his victims!" Upon which he took off his sash, turned it twice round the naked neck of the Emperor, and giving one end to Z—— and holding the other himself, they pulled for a considerable time with all their force, until the miserable sovereign was no more; they then retired from the palace without the least molestation, and returned to their respective homes."

The following article is from the Charleston Courier; and it is written with such spirit, independence and justice, that we feel persuaded men of all parties will read it with profit. A man of brilliant parts, and astonishing good or ill fortune, must always obtains admiration, even though he has faults and crimes to be set off against his talents and virtues.

BUONAPARTE.

The bloody Drama of Europe is concluded, and the great Tragedian, who for twenty years has made the earth his theatre, and set the world in tears, has left the stage forever! He lifted the curtain with his sword, and filled the scenes with slaughter. His part was invented by himself, and was terribly unique.—Never was there so ambitious, so restless a spirit—never so daring, so fortunate a soldier. His aim was universal dominion, and he gazed at it stedfastly, with the eye of the eagle, and the appetite of the vulture.

He combined within himself all the elements of terrour, nerve, malice, and intellect; a heart that never melted—a hand that never trembled—a mind that never wavered from its purpose. The greatness of his plans defied speculation, and the rapidity of their exeution outstripped prophecy. Civilized nations were the victims of his arts—and the savage could not withstand his warfare. Sceptres crumbled in his grasp and Liberty withered in his presence.

The Almghity appeared to have entrusted to him the destinies of the globe, and he used them to destroy. He shrouded the sun with clouds of battle, and unveiled the night with its fires. His march reversed the course of nature; the flowers of spring perished; the fruit of autumn fell; for his tract was cold, and cheerless, and desolate like the withering wintry blast.

Amid all the physical, moral and political changes which he produced, he was still the same. Always ambitious, always inexorable; no conquests satisfied; no compassion assuaged—no remorse deterred; no dangers alarmed him.

Like the barbarians he conquered Italy and rolling back to its source the deluge that overwhelmed Rome, he proved himself the Atilla of the South. With Hannibal he crossed the Alps in triumph; Africa beheld in him a second Scipio; and standing on the Pyramids of Egypt, he looked hown on the fame of Alexander. He sought the Scythian in his cave and the unconquered Arab fled before him. He won and divided, and ruled nearly all of modern Europe. It became a large French Province, where foreign Kings still reigned by courtesy, or mourned in chains. The Roman Pontiff was his prisoner, and he claimed dominion over the altar with the God of Hosts.

Even his name inspired universal terror, and the obscurity of his designs rendered him awfully mysterious. The navy of Great Britain watched him with the eyes of Argus, and her coast was lined with soldiers, who slept on their arms.

He made war before he declared it; and peace was with him, a signal for hostilities. His friends were the first whom he assailed and his allies he selected to plunder. There was a singular opposition between his alledged motives, and his conduct. He would have enslaved the land to make the ocean free, and he only wanted power to enslave both. If he was arrogant, his unparalleled success must excuse him. Who could endure the giddiness of such a mountain elevation? Who, that amid the slaughter of millions had escaped unhurt, would not suppose like ACHILLES, that a Deity had lent him armour? Who, that had risen from such obscurity, overcome such mighty obstacles, vanquished so many monarchs, won such extensive empires, and enjoyed so absolute a sway—who in the fullness of unequalled power and in the pride of exulting ambition, would not believe himself the favorite of Heaven?

He received tde tribute of fear & love, and admiration. The weight of the chains, which he imposed on France, was forgotten in their splendour; it was glorious to follow him even as a conscript; the arts became servile in his praise, and genius divided with him her immortal honours. For it is mind alone that can triumph overtime. Letters only yield permanent renown.

This blood-stained soldier adorned his throne with the trophies of art, and made Paris the seat of taste, as well as of power. There the old and new world met and conversed. There, Time was seen robbed of his scythe, lingering among beauties which he could not destroy.—There the heroes and artists of every age, mingled in splendid alliance, and joined in the march of fame. They will appeal to posterity to mitigate the sentence, which humanity will claim against the tyrant Bonaparte. Awful, indeed, will be that sentence; but when will posterity be a disinterested tribunal? When will the time arrive, that Europe shall have put off mourning for his crimes? In what distant recess of futurity, will the memory of Moscow sleep? When will Jena, Gerona and Austerlitz—when will Jaffa, Corunna and Waterloo, be named without tears of anguish, and vows of retribution? Earth can never forget, man can never forgive them.

It is for Heaven only to weigh the offences, which it has been pleased in its mercy to arrest.

LET HIM LIVE, if he endure life divested of his crown—without an army, and almost with a follower—LET HIM LIVE—he, who never spared his friends, if he can withstand the humiliation of owing his life to an enemy. Let him live and listen to the voice of conscience—He can no longer drown it in "the clamorous report of war." No cuirasse guards his bosom from the arrows of remorse. Now that the cares of state have ceased to distract his thoughts, let him reflect on his miserable self; and with the map before him retrace his bloody career. Alas! his life is a picture of ruin, and the light that displays it, is the funeral torch of nations. It exhibits one mighty sepulchre, crowded with the mangled victims of murderous ambition. Let him reflect on his enormous abuse of power—on his violated faith—and shameless, disregard of all law and justice. Let him live and repent—let him seek to atone in humility and solitude for the sins of his political life—an example of the catastrophe of the wicked, and the vanity of false greatness—Great he unquestionably was—great in the resources of a misguided spirit—great in the conception and execution of evil—great in mischief, like the pestilence—great in desolation, like the whirlwind.

SENECA.

Presentiment of Danger and Death.

AT the siege of the Havanna in 1762, the Namur and Valiant took it day and day about to fight a sap battery; and the relief of the people was effected every midnight, to save from the observation of the Spanish garrison one party's approach and the other's retreat. We had marched forty in number, a lieutenant leading, and myself [a midshipman] bringing up the rear, to relieve the Valiant's, when Moor, one of our men, made frequent calls to stop: these at last became quite frivolous, and my distance had got so long from the lieutenant, that the party was halted to close the line.—In the interim, Moor fairly owned he had no stomach for the battery that night, knowing he should be killed. Our officer, a hard-headed Scotchman, steady and regular as old time, began sharp upon me: my excuse was the man's tardiness, and I reported his words. "Killed, indeed, and cheat the sheriff of his thirteener and a baubee! No, no, Paddy: trust to fate and the family honour of the O'Moors for all that. Come, sir, bring him along: point your sword in his stern post." Moor, of course, made no reply, but under a visible corporeal effort and a roused indignation, stepped into the line: our whole party moved on. Now this Moor was seldom out of a quarrel on board ship, and having some knowledge of the fistycuff-art, he reigned pretty much as cock of the walk on the lower gun deck. When we had r

PLATTSBURGH, Oct. 21.

IN PEACE, PREPARE FOR WAR.

We understand the British are employed in strengthening their position at Isle-aux-Noix. Heavy ordinance, &c. have recently been brought up for that purpose. Sixty pieces of cannon have not long since been taken up the St: Lawrence. A gentleman residing in Montreal, informs us, that 8 regiments are expected to arrive in the Province this season. We mention these preparations, not as indications of hostility; they are designed, no doubt, for a Peace establishment. But we ought to be admonished of the necessity of meeting these exertions, by a corresponding preparation, lest the British government, finding us off our guard, should renew their determination, as expressed by gov. Prevost last autumn, of driving our chief magistrate from the presidential chair.

QUEBEC, Oct. 12.

Our neighbours in the United States, as a previous step to the adjustment of the boundaries on the frontiers of these provinces by the commissioners, are taking possession of the Islands in the Niagara river, under the pretext of purchase from the Indians. Instead of adding to the territories in possession of the British, we should not be surprised if they were diminished by the arrangement in the Treaty for adjusting the boundaries.

The whole of the past season in this part of the world, has been an extraordinary one. There was a snow storm on the 20th of May, and the forest trees were not in the full leaf till about the 10th of June. Between the 25th July and the end of September, there have not been more than 3 or 4 fair days in succession, and whole weeks of rainy days. On the 7th August, the 3d and 19th September, there was frost to a degree which on the 1st of this month had destroyed the verdure of the forests as completely as was usually about the end of October. The produce of the sod serving for the sustenance of man has not, however, greatly suffered. The crop of wheat is generally considered as an average crop. In this district, the oats and pease, which were promising, have in many instances had not sufficient time to ripen. The potatoe crops have in many places failed. The fruit trees in general have been as productive as in ordinary seasons; so that upon the whole we have ample reason to be grateful.

NO NEWS.

The papers received since our last are barren of any news of importance.—We have selected the most interesting of their contents.

MILITARY DESPOTISM.

We have perused a pamphlet of 64 pages, entitled, "The vindication of Captain JOSEPH TREAT, late of the 21st U. S. Infantry, against the ATTROCIOUS CALUMNY comprehended in Major Gen. Brown's official report of the battle of Chippewa." In this report, Captain Treat's name is thus blazoned to the world.

"Capt. TREAT, who commanded it [a piquet guard] retired disgracefully, leaving a wounded man on the ground."

"I ordered Capt. TREAT, on the spot, to retire from the army; and as I am anxious that no officer shall serve under my command, who can be suspected of cowardice, I advise that Capt. TREAT, and Lieut. ——,* who was also with the piquet, be struck from the rolls of the army."

Capt. Treat thus deprived of his command, and pointed out as an object of contempt and reproach to the whole army on the 5th July, 1814, we find, was continued in disgrace until after the close of the war, altho' repeated applications were made for a trial, & several general courts martial had been holden during the interval. On the 5th of April 1815 his trial commenced, and on the 8th of May he was HONORABLY ACQUITTED by the court:—which acquittal, after a delay of almost two months, was approved by Major Gen. Brown.

The pamphlet is composed chiefly of official reports and minutes of courts, and discloses an act of military tyranny and usurpation of power, unparalleled in the annals of despotism.

"Who steals my purse steals trash—'tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, & has been slave to thousands;
But he who filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed."

* Lieut. Morrow was the officer here alluded to. He was brother to the Hon. Jeremiah Morrow, a democratic Senator in Congress from the state of Ohio, which may account probably for his name being omitted in the printed report. Capt. Treat, in his pamphlet says, "the conduct of the Lieut. was beyond reproach or suspicion."

We have been informed, that to allay the public apprehension on the subject of "current money," the directors of the banks in N. York, have adopted the following arrangements which we are happy to hear, has greatly quieted the clamours that had arisen in that city.

—"That they will not increase the amount of their loans, and consequently not increase their circulating paper.

—"That they will, weekly, at a general meeting of committees from the respective banks, furnish a statement of their operations, so far as they regard loans.

—"And, that if any one falls in debt to the others, the debtor bank shall pay interest."

The directors of all the banks have pledged themselves faithfully to perform and observe the preceding arrangements.

UNPRECEDENTED PHENOMENON.

We have conversd with several gentlemen, of undoubted veracity, from the county of Ulster, in this state, who all agree in the following very extraordinary relation.

That they have conversed with several credible persons from Marbletown, in that country and they mention the the names of persons well known to the editor of this paper; and these persons assert, and declare themselves ready to make oath, that the stones lying in two fields there, on several successive days, rose from the ground, to the height of 3 and 4 feet, and moved along, slowly and horizontally, from 30 to 60 feet; and that a few of them even mounted over the tops of the trees! That the persons who first beheld these astonishing performances, were disbelieved by the neighborhood; but all those, who came to see if there was any truth in the accounts, are prepared to swear to them. The last performance was in an open field, without wood or cover near it.

We understand that a gentleman from Kingston has taken means to have every circumstance accurately verified by affidavits; which will probably be laid before the public, in a week or two.

GERMANY.

Among the curious subjects of enquiry, interesting to naturalists, a German writer has treated, in a work published at Leipsic, on the foretellers of Weather in the Animal Kingdom. It contains a general review of the animals which manifest symptoms of any kind at the approach of atmospherical changes. He reckons 20 mammiterœ, 37 birds, 7 amphibia, 1 fish, 20 insects, and 3 worms. He avoided giving any authority to the superstitious and exaggerated account of the country people; or at least he reduces them to their true value, and offers the result of facts known to himself, in consequence either of his own observations or experiments. He has formed the whole into 55 rules, established by his own knowledge; and which he presents as infallible, forming a part of meteorology and rural economy.

DIED, on the 14th inst. Mrs. ELIZABETH GREENOUGH, wife of Mr. Thomas Greenough, in the 51st year of her age, of a severe illness, which she was enabled to bear with patience and fortitude. She met with calmness the approach of death, who was to her, not the king of terrors, but the messenger of peace. She has left a disconsolate husband and a large family of children to deplore the loss of a tender and affectionate wife and mother.

Departed this life, in Kaskaskia, on Friday the 25th of September last, Mrs. MARGARET M'FERRON, consort of Joseph M'Ferron, sen. late of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. She was born in Ireland, A. D. 1741—virtuous, amiable, and highly respected by all her friends: and at a period when performing the most important maternal duties, a mind of sensibility yielded to grief, occasioned by the premature death of two favourite children. These 25 years she has had little relish for the enjoyments of society, but a spark of maternal sensibility still remaining she was prompted to pay a last visit to her offspring whom destiny removed a great distance from her; having performed this last feeling of affection in company with her venerable consort, after a short illness, at the residence of John M'Ferron, Esq. her eldest son, she resigned without a sigh or a groan a life guileless, though passed in sorrow many years.—Communicated

The Town of Peeblesburgh.

THIS TOWN, so called in memory of the late Col. Peebles, of Franklin county, has lately been laid out and established on the Farm of Robert C. Peebles, in Plumb creek township, Armstrong county. It is delightfully situated on the east bank of Crooked creek, where the great road from Boaler's to the Town of Kittaning, crosses said creek, in a thickly settled and rapid improving part of the country. The local situation is highly advantageous: about equal distant from the Towns of Indiana, Kittaning, and the Conemaugh Salt Works, and has several excellent Mills and an extensive manufactory of Salt in its immediate neighborhood. Two or three Merchants, and Mechanics of every description, would find the situation well worthy their attention.

S. Engles, Printer,

Informs the Public, that he has re-commenced his Business

IN WOOD STREET,

four doors above Diamond Alley, opposite Mr. Sturgeon's Tavern,

Where he solicits a continuance of public patronage.

HANDBILLS, CARDS, BLANKS, and JOB-WORK of every description, neatly executed at the shortest notice.

He takes this method of expressing his gratitude to his fellow-citizens, for their unparallelled exertions in saving the principal part of his materials from the destructive Fire on Friday morning, the 27th ult. and sincerely hopes they may never need a reciprocation of the favour.

He earnestly calls on those indebted to him, to settle their accounts without delay.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

CONTAINING, all the words in general use, with their significations accurately explained, and the sound of each syllable clearly expressed: among which will be found several hundred terms, that have been hitherto omitted by the best lexicographers: Also, a variety of the technical terms of Medicine, Law, Commerce, Arts, and general Science, interspersed with critical and philological observations. Compiled under the direction of sundry literary characters and institutions, in the United States of America.

TO THE EDITOR

OF THE AMERICAN DAILY ADVERTISER.

YOU are requested to re-publish the following communication, inserted in your paper of the 28th June, 1813.

COMMUNICATION.

"The Subscriber, having sold to MURRAY, DRAPER, FAIRMAN & Co. all his dies, tools and machines, for the making of Plates for Bank Notes, or other important papers, together with all his patent privileges relating thereto, and having received a full* and satisfactory compensation for the same, he declines having any further concern in the aforesaid business; except at the request of the aforesaid Murray Draper, Fairman & Co.

(Signed) "ABEL BREWSTER.

"Philadelphia, June 28, 1813."

Notwithstanding the Business between the said Abel Brewster, and the undersigned, was settled agreeably to the tenor of the foregoing communication, the said Brewster has had the hardihood, after a lapse of two years and three months, to publish and circulate a Pamphlet addressed, "To the Banks in particular, and the Public in general," implicating in libellous terms, the character and conduct of our Association.

The Banks and the Public are respectfully requested to suspend their opinions on said Pamphlet, until a legal investigation has taken place, as a suit will be immediately commenced.

DOCTOR CHISHOLM'S

Anti-Bilious Pills,

Of a quality superior to any thing of the kind ever offered as a GENERAL MEDICINE, in this Country.

NOW prepared from a recipe of the celebrated Dr. Chisholm, who, from a long residence in the West-India Islands, has been enabled to favor the world with the most complete history, and most approved methods of curing all the BILIOUS DISEASES of those warm climates.

This extraordinary Medicine, which now for the first time is finding its way into general practice, has properties in the highest degree superior to the mercurial nostrums so frequently recommended by the name of Anti-Bilious Pills. The extraordinary powers of this medicine as a solvent and evacuent of Bile, is without example; never producing debility or injuring the health, in the smallest degree, of the most delicate child or weakly female:

The BILIOUS HEAD-ACHE, so much complained of in this country, and in the neighbourhood of rivers, is often removed by a single dose, which, to a strong man, is only five pills, and to a weakly woman, three. The same dose will generally remove the most excruciating pains of the cholic, like a charm, by abusing the bile to pass downwards in the course of an hour or two.

Two or three Pills taken an hour before dinner, and repeated every third day, will effectually remove those diseases arising from flatulency and indigestion, and by persevering in the use of them for a considerable time, the appetite will be improved, and strength and vigor will return.

Two Pills taken at bed time, with a cup of penny-royal tea, and repeated every second night, will effectually remove Rheumatic pains wherever seated.

A single Pill, taken every fourth hour with a cup of flaxseed tea, will cure Pleurisy, promote expectoration, and relieve coughs and colds.

In CONSUMPTIVE CASES and DISEASES OF THE LIVER, no medicine ever yet discovered, has been known to perform such cures. Two Pills taken every third morning, will be found sufficient, unless costiveness prevails; in which case the dose may be increased according to the strength or constitution.

The Dysentery, Croup, and Summer Complaint on children, are soon relieved by a few doses. A single Pill to a child of 6 years old, and the dose increased according to their strength and age.

In Asthmatic or Phthisical cases, where the laborious breathing and great oppression, with faintings, are fast sinking the patient to the brink of the grave, a few Pills, taking one every hour, with fennel or pepper-mint tea, will often enable the patient to walk about in a few hours.

The above valuable Medicine is Sold ONLY in Pittsburgh, by
J. P. & J. W. SKELTON,
at their Wholesale and Retail Apothecary and Drug Store.

DOCTOR HANDY'S
WORM
DESTROYING LOZENGES.

A safe and efficacious medicine for destroying and bringing away WORMS.

MAY be used with safety by children of any age, or as common physic by the most delicate constitution, in any climate, without restraint of diet, or the smallest danger from cold. It may be given with advantage after the small-pox or measles; or as a family medicine, in any case where physic is necessary.—The most frequent seat of worms in the human body, is the intestinal tube; but occasionally they have been found in almost every other part of the body.

Some very extraordinary cases of Worms, of an unusual form and appearance, being brought away by these Lozenges, have been made public in England, where the rapid sale of the medicine has exceeded any thing of the kind ever known before; and has also proved, to a demonstration, its approved superiority, as an athelminthick, to the numerous puffed-up, useless nostrums, which are daily advertised in the newspapers.

A single dose of this valuable medicine has often been known to remove half a pot full of the Teres or Round Worms.

A few doses are generally sufficient to remove the Ascarides, a small white worm, the seat of which is either the stomach or rectum.

Even the Tape Worm, at all times the most difficult to destroy, may, by persevering in the frequent use of this medicine, be totally removed in the course of a few weeks.

To select cases, with the names of people who are not known here, and living at a great distance, would be useless, and take up too much of the readers time. We shall therefore only observe, for the benefit of those who are acquainted with the symptoms of worms, that they are known or suspected to exist by a pain in the stomach, attended with a sudden depression of spirits before eating; at other times the belly is hard, painful and distended with wind—costiveness, head ache, and trembling of the limbs, with a sense of something rising in the throat—pale complexion and emaciated body, with weakness and irregular appetite—convulsive, epileptic or falling fits—pains in the back and side, and frequent itching of the nose, and sometimes of the anus. The above and a long train of afflicting diseases may all be occasioned by worms, which are much oftener the cause of death than is commonly believed.

The above Valuable MEDICINE, is sold, ONLY, by
J. P. & J. W. Skelton,
At their WHOLESALE & RETAIL Drug Store, at the corner of Wood and Third Streets,
